Tinley Park Boy Has Thrilling Plane Ride

Dick Swisher of Tinley Park had a thrilling air plane ride Sunday. He boarded a plane at the Chicago air port. The pilot had intended to go up only 4,000 but when the big plane flew over the lake it ran into a fog bank and for awhile the pilot was lost. There also was a heavy rain squall. In order to outride the fog the pilot went up over 6,000 feet and finally got back to port safe. The ride was a thrilling one.

Orland To Get Chemical Truck

Orland Park is going to have a fire truck at last. At a special council meeting held Monday night it was decided to buy the equipment. The report submitted showed that over $1200 has been collected from the farmers of the vicinity and the village people and the village council will raise the balance. The cost of the truck will be $3500. The truck will be mounted on a Chevrolet chassis, will be fully equipped with chemical tanks and pumper.

This new outfit will give not only Orland but the immediate farms of the community, excellent fire protection.

Musical At Mokena School Friday, Nov. 22

Do not fail to attend the 'Musical' to be given this Friday evening, November 22 in the new school auditorium. This is a rare treat in music, one of the great features will be the Dutch Band, a laugh for all.

This musical is sponsored by the Mokena P. T. A., under the direction of a highly talented musician of Chicago and his 25 musicians, some only 12 years old. Come and see what BOYS CAN DO.

Orland P. T. A. Adopt By-Laws

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park P. T. A. was held Thursday evening, November 14th. The by-laws as drafted by a committee consisting of Rev. Paul Sanders and Mrs. Jessie Creer were offered for approval and were adopted with the exception of two sections, one in regard to the term of office of the officers and the other in regard to quorum, which were held over to the next regular meeting pending a ruling from the State Parliamentarian.

The first of the "Seven Cardinal Objectives" of the association, namely, the consideration of Worthy Home Membership, was taken up for study. Mrs. George Gee, Sr., presented a paper on the "Home", Mr. Earl Holt on the "School", and Mrs. Sherman S. Knox on the "Community". All the papers were well conceived and excellently written and brought out much food for thought and discussion.

Clarice Mahaffay entertained with selections on the piano.

The picture that is awarded to the room having the largest representation of parents was awarded to Miss Schmadeke's intermediate room for the coming month.

The picture for this year, which was selected by Dr. Sherman S. Knox is an excellent reproduction of one of Corots masterpieces, the "Dance of the Nymphs". Thru a fortunate purchase this picture was secured at about half of the regular price and Dr. Knox was accordingly authorized to purchase a companion picture by the same artist if it could still be secured at the same price. This second picture will be offered as a special prize, the details of which however have not been worked out as yet. Several new members were added to the membership roll but there is still room for more.

Orland P. T. A. Dance A Wow

The dance sponsored by the Orland Park P. T. A. was held in the High School Auditorium on Friday evening, November 15th and it went over big as everyone who was fortunate enough to be present will testify. The music was furnished by Johnny Blue's Shad's of Blue orchestra from Joliet and the music and entertainment the boys furnished sure was HOT.

There were about 250 well pleased and well satisfied cash customers present and all voted unanimously for another such party in the near future.

The financial figures are not available as yet but it is safe to say that a substantial profit was realized on the venture. This dance was sponsored by the Orland Park P. T. A. as an experiment. It was thought that if clean, wholesome dancing with a good floor and good music could be provided at home, our young folks could better be kept in their home community. Mrs. Harry Melchor was general chairman in charge of all arrangements and certainly achieved wonderful results. On Wednesday night preceding the dance, Mr. and Mrs. Melchor, Dr. and Mrs. S. S. Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Uthe, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reich and Miss Ruby Uthe and Dorothy Wheeler worked until nearly midnight decorating the hall in the blue and gold colors of the association. Tom, Bob and Jimmie Davidson and Earl Waje were busy with a power buffer resurfacing the rough places in the floor. Herman and Fred Uthe donated their time and services and took out a partition and widened a door to give more room for dancing.

Mrs. Tom Davidson sent over a couple loads of cinders to fill in a muddy ditch caused by the recent road widening work and thus make it possible for cars to get into the school yard without fear of getting stuck in the mud. Jimmy Davidson and Robert Scott presided over the refreshment stand and dished out the hot dogs, coffee, etc. Del Cooper had charge of the check room and the job of taking tickets at the outer door was split up among Jim and Mrs. Creer, Earl and Mrs. Reich, Mrs. S. S. Knox and several others. Pete Ott, custodian of the building had the floor waxed to a velvet smoothness and the temperature of the hall just right for comfort. So Orland P. T. A.'s first dance must go down on the records as being a wow of a success.

STATE FIRE MARSHALL CALLS IN MOKENA

Last Friday the State Fire Marshall of Springfield called in Mokena to investigate the recent fire in which the Fisher building in which were located the Bethards Chevrolet Sales and Service Garage and the Fred Brown Eat Shoppe were destroyed.

The Fire Marshall had a conference with the local fire chief, Herman Schweser, regarding the time of the fire, where it was first seen and other circumstances regarding the fire. He was anxious to see Mr. Bethards in order to question him regarding the fire. The latter has not been in Mokena for sometime so no one knew where he could be found.

It is reported that the fire insurance policy of Bethard for $15000 has been attached by a Chicago firm whom he owes a large account.

Bethards came to Mokena the early part of the summer and opened his garage above mentioned in the Fisher building on which he also took a lease. In August he married a Chicago girl. He bought a house and lot from Dr. E. G. McMahon in Mokena on which he made a down payment.

Shortly afterward he made another down payment for the purchase of the filling station and lunch room south of town started by Peter Michaelson and known as "Pete's Place". He opened a road house under the name of "The Green Gables".

Shortly afterward reports became current that booze was being sold and that quite fast company was seen there. The place was open all night and looked like one of New York's famed night clubs.

At an open meeting of the village council it was reported that there had been run play at the road house when one fellow resented the attention another fellow was paying his wife, and the resentful husband, it was stated whipped out a revolver and hit the offender on the head.

At a later meeting of the village board it was stated that this place was getting notorious and that beer and alcohol was being sold freely, but that when the bootleggers did not get paid for their booze they pulled out the beer pumps they had installed and also refused to deliver any more alcohol. It is said local men had served as bartenders at this place.

The village board tried to enforce collection of a bill of $105 which Bethards owed for special licenses for his garage and road house, but so far have not collected a dime.

Bethards got in deep financial difficulties and has left a trail of debts behind him. He is the son of a Methodist preacher, Rev. Bethards formerly of Peotone, now located at Gresham.

The Green Gables have hit the rocks and are now closed.

A public hearing was held by the Board of local Improvement last Tuesday evening on the laying of water mains bordering and in the new forty acre development of the Elmore Company on the southeast corner of the village.

This is to be covered by special assessment and affects only people in the community who will be benefited by fire protection, etc. It was explained that the project would cost between $2 and $2.50 per foot to the immediate benefactors and probable a little less to the others who would not benefit much there from. This assessment is to be spread over a ten year period.

Tinley Legion Dance Goes Over Great

The many Legion members of the Tinley Park Post No. 615, can be seen these days with a pleasant smile for everyone and why shouldn't they, as it seems everyone and his brother from Tinley as well as all neighboring municipalities were present at their dance at the Saenger hall Saturday evening. The music was furnished only by Sammy Berk and his boys do, was approved by both young and old and the big crowd stayed to the last.

The proceeds received from the dance will benefit the boys greatly in their contemplated service work.

SHOP AND MAIL EARLY

The postal department is urging all postmasters to instruct their patrons to do their Christmas mailing early. During the holiday time the volume of mail increases approximately 200 per cent. It is a physical impossibility to handle this great mass of mail matter efficiently and promptly within a few days. Therefore to assure delivery of their Christmas presents, cards and letters by Christmas Day the public should SHOP AND MAIL EARLY. Do your Christmas shopping so that you can mail your gifts, greetings, and letters to relatives, friends and loved ones at least a week or 10 days before Christmas according to distance. This will not only make it certain that they are received on or before Christmas Day, but will be a great aid to the postal service and to postal employees and enable them to spend Christmas Day with their families.

Addresses should be complete, with house number and name of street, post-office box or rural-route number, and typed or plainly written in ink. A return card should be placed in the upper left hand corner of every piece of mail. If a tag is used, the address and return card should also be written on the wrapper for use if tag is lost, and a copy of the address should be inclosed inside the parcel.

Patrons sending a quantity of Christmas cards, say 10 or more, should prepare them and mail same two or three weeks in advance, as millions are mailed and they can not possibly be handled and delivered if mailed only two or three days before Christmas.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

BY
Trudie Noehring Swisher
Columbine Song, Colorado

Where the snowy peak gleams in the moonlight
Above the dark forest of pine
Where the wild foaming waters dash onward,
To the land where the tropic stars shine.

Where the scream of the bold mountain eagle,
Responds to the note of the dove
Its the purple robe west the land that is best.

The pioneer land that is best,
Its the land where the "Columbine" grows.

Overlooking the plains far below
And the cool summer breeze,
Through the evergreen trees
Softly sings where the "Columbine" grows.

The bison has gone from the upland,
The deer from the canyon has fled.

The home of the wolf is deserted
The antelope mourns for its dead
The warn hoof it echoes no longer.

The Indians only a name
And the nymphs of the grove
In its loneliness roves
But the Columbine blooms just the same.

Where the violets brighten the brookside,
In summer of earlier spring
Where the clover beds the green meadows,

In days where the orioles sing
Where the golden-rod swells the autumn,

But under the midsummer skies
In my far western home.

May the Columbine's bloom,
Till our great mountains, rivers winds away.

The last regular meeting of the Garden Club was held in the home of Mrs. Clarence Goessel last Friday afternoon with almost a full attendance. After all business had been taken care of numerous features of interest took place, most important of which was the presentation of a bouquet of beautiful flowers to our president, Mrs. R. J. Hug, by Mrs. E. Anderson with the following remarks:

Officers and Members: If you have looked at your Garden Glories for November no doubt you have noticed the standing committees Of The Garden Club of Illinois appointed October 14, 1929. Among these appointed appears your own president's name, Mrs. R. J. Hug to serve on the speaker's Bureau. At this time it is fitting that we wish her success in her new work, and congratulate our leader.

Madame President may I present this token of Love in behalf of the members of the Garden Club and assure you of our support.

Mrs. Lulu Rogers read the beautiful poem which heads this article. Mrs. E. Anderson then read a lengthy and interesting account on the "Care and Planting of Bulbs".

Plans were discussed for the Christmas Party, Mrs. Harry Mager taking charge of the refreshments, and Mrs. E. Anderson program chairman charge of the program.

The next meeting will be December 29, 1929, at the home of Mrs. Henry Vogt. Hot coffee and delicious cake, for which Mrs. C. Goessel is noted, was served by the hostess.

COUNT LUCKNER THE SEA DEVIL

Copyright by Doubleday, Doran & Co.

By LOWELL THOMAS

Running before the wind, the Seadler, now under her proper name and with all the Norwegian camouflage cleared away, sped southward toward Madeira. The gun crew worked hard at drill and target practice, and Count Luckner offered a prize to the man who should sight the first prize vessel. Off Gibraltar the raiders met a large British steamship, and raising the signal "Chronometer time, please," prepared to take her. When Luckner ran up the German flag the steamer tried to run away but was brought to a stop by shots across its bows. It was the Gladys Royal, carrying coal from Cardiff to Buenos Aires. Captain Chew and his crew were taken aboard the Seadler and their vessel was sunk by a bomb. The next ship sighted was a passenger steamer and Luckner let it go by, but the third, the Lundy Island, with sugar for France, was shelled until she stopped and her crew removed to the raider. She was sunk by direct gunfire.

"To all of our crew?"
"Yes, to our crew, and to all of our prisoners, too! Ten pounds sterling and a bottle of champagne! I'll bet that'll send everybody into the rigging, including the captains."

"By Joe, you're right," said my mate, slapping his knee, "particularly since they know that, as soon as we are full up with prisoners, they will all be sent into some port."

"Exactly," I responded. "It won't be long before we have several hundred aboard. That will make a fine flock of birds perched in the rigging. Forces of the Allies on the lookout for Allied ships to sink!"

Leudemann and I roared with laughter the longer we thought of it. I at once had notices posted up:

"Ten pounds and a bottle of champagne to the first man who sights a ship. Offer open to all."

You should have seen the rigging crowded with crew and prisoners from then on. Every man who had any kind of glass brought it out. There were up-to-date binoculars, old-fashioned spyglasses, and cheap opera glasses. Even those without any glasses took their places on the yard-arms, trusting to luck and the power of the naked eye. The two captains, with the dignity and poise that became their exalted rank, climbed aloft and sat next to each other on a yard, sweeping the horizon with their excellent binoculars.

Never had a ship such a lookout. I often stood and watched the curious flock perched in the rigging, all colors, sizes, and styles of beauty. And, believe me, they were wonders at spotting ships. Sometimes two or three would spot the same ship at the same moment. Then there would be an argument, a riddle for Solomon himself to answer. Once or twice the argument got so hot that I had to pay two rewards for a ship, and then the champagne flowed freely. That night, if the weather was balmy and a gentle breeze was blowing from the Gulf stream, the deck of the Seadler became a veritable beer garden, and our guests frolicked like tourists on a Mediterranean cruise.

CHAPTER V

Raiding Along the Equator

There are some memories that are painful to recall. To this day I can see the Charles Gounod going down, her bowsprit plunging first and her tall masts sinking slowly, first one spar disappearing and then another. It fills me with sadness, for she had behaved like a gallant craft, and she was a large barque with all the air of an argosy, and as we bore toward her, she proudly saluted our Norwegian flag by raising the tricolor of France.

"What news of the war?" she signaled.

We steered close to her, unmasked our gun, and raised the German battle flag.

"Heave to," was our reply. Incredulity, consternation! The officers and sailors on deck stood paralyzed for a long moment. Then the barque heaved to.

Our prize crew went aboard and commandeered a batch of fine red wine from among the ship's provisions, and three fine fat hogs. The Frenchmen packed their belongings and came aboard the Seadler. They were a glum-looking, disgusted lot.

The captain was painfully correct in his manner toward us. He was a tall, impressive fellow with deep voice and black beard. A man of fine education and studious mind, he was scrupulously polite, but knew how to make the hostility he felt toward us clearly and rather amusingly evident. He was our prisoner. Very well, he conceded that. But we were the enemies of his country and the destroyers of his ship. Therefore he preserved a demeanor appropriate to that attitude of mind throughout his entire voyage with us. For our part, we could not but admire him for his superb, unbending spirit. His barque was loaded with a cargo of corn and bound for Bordeaux.

Now, I don't know much music, and I don't care for this modern jazz school at all. Faust I enjoy. Give me the duet in the Garden scene, and, since I am called the "Sea Devil," I don't mind admitting a secret fondness for old Mephisto and his serenade beneath the window. Now I had to sink my favorite composer. The thought of it made me hum a phrase of Valentine's dying lament.

But the sinking of the Charles Gounod meant much more than any such superficial melancholy. One shouldn't ever have to sink a ship. They are the last survivors of the golden days at sea, crueller days and finer days. Take any old salt who has sailed before the mast, and ask him. The shipyards are not building many of them any more, and the day of the schooner, the barque, the clipper, and the barkentine is fast passing. Every one that goes down to Davy Jones is a loss that will not be replaced. I have an old-time seaman's love for sail-ships. A steamer? Train the guns and light the fuses. I could sink a steamer and laugh as she takes her last dive. But I never did get used to sinking sailing ships, although we had to send many of them on their last voyage before our own dual adventure in the South seas.

Our bombs exploded in the hold of the Charles Gounod. She lurched like a living thing. Her tall masts trembled. The majestic ship seemed to bow her head as she nosed down into the sea. The last we saw of her was a glimpse of her tallest mast and waving from it the tricolor of France. With her departure, I somehow thought I saw the passing of the whole age of sailing ships.

Three days later, a tremendous commotion in the rigging. Six men were reporting "Sail ho!"

She was a fine three-masted schooner. We thought she might be an American. The Americans favor that type of ship. And the United States was not yet in the war. However, the Canadians also have a weakness for the three-masted schooner. We raised our flag, hoping to induce the skipper to raise his flag, which would be the polite response for him to make. But her skipper didn't seem to be in any mood for returning compliments that day. Perhaps he had had a bad night and was saying to himself:

"What do I care for that old Norwegian tub?"

We backed our main-topmast and dipped our flag three times as a salute, hoping that this exceptional courtesy would induce the schooner to follow the amenities of the sea.

It happened now that our freebooting led us to intrude unwittingly into the rose-covered field of romance, where our rough pirate's boots were not adapted to walk among the delicate plants. However, buccanniers that we were, we were not without a high regard for the tender sentiment. Aboard the schooner, the captain had his newly married bride. The voyage was their honeymoon.

Leudemann and I stood on the bridge.

"Better leave the lubber alone," I said.

Just then the ensign in the lookout on the mainmast sang out:

"That's no American. They're raising the British flag."

Sure enough, there were the British colors. Up went our battle flag! Across her bows went a shot from our gun. But it required a second shot before she heaved to.

"Hey!" cried Leudemann, "there's a woman."

The captain's bride was running around the deck in a tailspin, as aviators say. I don't know whether she was afraid of shot and shell or the righteous ire of her husband. Maybe he was chasing her.

The schooner was the H. M. S. Percy bound from Nova Scotia with a cargo of gaberdine. The captain told me he saw our first shot splash into the water in front of his ship, and thought it merely a whale spouting. With our second shot he heard the report of the gun, and saw that we were an auxiliary cruiser. The Percy's cargo was so light that we did not use bombs, but shot her full of holes.

We were worried about having fair company aboard. There might be rough work that would not be good for the eyes of woman. And then a woman needs attention. She must be treated with care and consideration. Suppose this new and undesired captive should start to complain. Women like to complain. Suppose she should grow angry at being kept a prisoner. What could we do? You couldn't put her in the brig.

"Well, Leudemann," said I, "the only thing we can do is to treat her so well that she will be happy all the time."

"I treated a dame well once," growled Leudemann, "and then she ran off with another man the first time I left her alone."

The skipper's bride turned out to be the best fellow you could want. She had one of those sunny temperaments that simply spread mirth and good cheer everywhere. She had a smile for everyone and in every circumstance. She took her stay aboard the Seadler as an unexpected, exciting, and appropriate phase of her honeymoon, and resolved to get the greatest possible fun out of it.

When she got back to Canada, she gave the newspapers long stories about her stay on our terrible pirate raider, the Seadler, and told what a delightful time the freebooters had shown her. When I returned to Germany after the war, I found an envelope full of clippings from her awaiting me.

We lay in the waters off Africa five degrees above the equator and thirty degrees west longitude. That region is right on the path of all sailing ships that run before the southeast trade winds and head north. The weather is seldom bad there, the air is clear, and from our masthead we had a range of vision of thirty miles.

A Frenchman, no doubt of it. The ship was scrupulously clean, her rigging trim and neat. Her hull was decorated artistically with gunports, after the manner of an old-time war frigate. Only the French keep their ships so thoroughly shined up, and there was one firm of French shipping owners whose custom it was to decorate their vessels man-o'-war fashion. She was the four-masted brig Antonin. We came up behind her diagonally, and then after her. Our motor was having one of its off days, but we did not care.

A sudden wind squall arose. It blew like a fury. The captain of the Antonin was a sensible skipper. He immediately lowered sail, took in his royals and upper gallant sails. That was where we had it on him, for we had no miserly shipowner to be afraid of. Our masts wouldn't break, anyway.

"Keep every stitch on, boys! After her, my hearties!"

Of course, we gained rapidly on her now.

The wind continued to howl. The gale raged, and the captain of the Antonin thought we were quite mad. Gallants and royals up during a wind squall—he had never seen such a thing in all his days at sea. The sight was so funny that he wanted a picture of it. We watched him standing in the stern of his ship and gazing down into the finder of his camera.

"Leudemann," I said to my helmsman, "we must capture that snapshot for our collection of photographs, if we have to take a trip to Davy Jones doing it."

We were attempting to keep a thorough photographic record of our cruise, for the Imperial archives, and a picture of the Seadler running with all sails set through a squall particularly if that picture were snapped all unwittingly by the captain of a prize, would indeed be a gem for our collection.

We were close behind the Antonin now. A machine gun began to rattle. We were often bored during those long days at sea. Anything for a bit of amusement. It would be funny to watch that captain's face when he heard the typewriter of Mars rattling in his ear and when he saw us sending a stream of lead through his rigging. First he started, and then he glared. What did these lunatics mean? This kind of insanity was too much. His rigging might be injured, ropes cut or spars smashed. He began to roar at us in the most profane French. When a Frenchman swears you can hear it far off. Then he saw the German flag at our masthead. He staggered back with a dramatic gesture that only a Frenchman can achieve. We sank the Antonin just as we sank the others.

SHOES TO MATCH LATEST VANITY; RETURN TO NORMAL WAISTLINE

AN ADDED vanity has been brought into the program of dress for the school girl—colorful kid shoes. In issuing this call for footwear to match, fashion encourages youth to observe that same nicety of color values, which is so generally observed in the adult style world.

So, when the school-faring miss adopts her favorite color, according to the rules of the fashion game, she curately matched shade, jersey bands trimming the same.

The young woman who decides upon taffeta for her party frock shows that she is properly fabric-conscious. If she decides on red for the color, then again does the youthful sophisticate follow a fashion-wise course. Not only for evening wear is red an outstanding color, but it is en mode for day time as well. There's nothing in the way of a street outfit for must do so from head to foot, which is just what she did when she chose the winsome frock in the picture above. This girlish model is a one-piece which looks like a two-piece. It is of blue flannel, the upper plaid part being in three shades of blue on a cream ground. The Peter Pan collar is furnished at the throat with a blue silk tie matching one of the shades in the plaid. The shoes are navy kid in a one-strap model, with carefully styled leather heels.

This costume carried out in tones of green would be equally as effective and rich, for beautiful greens are exceedingly smart this season. There would be no difficulty in getting shoes in a handsome green to match, or a wine shade, for that matter, should the dress be developed in the deep toned reds.

For dressier occasions this plaid with plain frock could be carried out most charmingly in velvet, for plaid youth quite so swanky as an ensemble developed in red-toned tweed, with knitted slip-on blouse to match, the cloth generously furled in black or gray.

As an evening color red is the rage. Perfectly charming and immensely flattering are dresses of red net, coarse tulle, allover lace or taffeta, velvet or satin as the case may be. Paris creates many arresting gowns in this color, such as, for instance, a Chanel model which uses finely all-over-patterned red lace, most intricately manipulated in way of spiral tiers and a labyrinth of drapes which flutter gracefully about the shoulders.

The model in the picture below leaves no doubt as to the revived favor for waistlines. Of course it takes a slender girlish figure to carry with honors a highwaisted and full-skirted silhouette as is this. But that is how youth is proclaiming itself this season—by victoriously wearing velvets are easily available and they make up effectively with velvet in a solid color. By supplementing a frock of this type with a matching velvet jacket, the result would be an ensemble of super attractiveness. The costume might be topped with either a matching tam, combining the two velvets, or one of the new chenille crocheted berets would prove a crowning glory.

Very often the contrast in the material which goes to make up the frock is in the weave rather than the color. A happy combination widely featured this season is jersey with satin. As applied to the model pictured, jersey in some one of the popular wines, green, browns or blues would be used for the skirt portion, the blouse top being of satin in an acquaint models which are the envy of and the impossible for "fat, fair and forty." From the atelier of Lanvin comes this very lovely frock illustrated. It is developed of bright lusterful red bengher taffeta. Tiny twin peplums at the waistline with a multiplicity of godets worked into the skirt, give to this model a picturesque bouffancy.

As said before red is as fashionable a color for daytime wear as it is for evening. Such interesting combinations as black broadcloth and red satin occur in the afternoon mode in this wise—the coat is of the black cloth collared and furled with black caracul, the gown and the coat lining being of the red satin.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescription product.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Needlewomen in China Ply Trade in Street

China is perhaps the only country in the world where one may have his garments mended on the street while he waits. In nearly all the chief cities of the country native sewing women are to be seen seated on low stools, perhaps on the sidewalk, mending articles of masculine wearing apparel.

The accomplishments of these street seamstresses are somewhat limited, their efforts with the needle being confined, as a rule, to "running." Other branches of needlework are virtually unknown to them. As a consequence their efforts are better appreciated by natives than by foreign travelers.

They are never short of patrons among the Chinese tradesmen, for these are often natives of other districts, and having come to the city to engage in business have no one to mend a rent for them. Their wives being left at home, they are glad to employ the street needlewomen. For this class of customers the skill of the itinerant sewing woman answers every purpose.

"State Parks and Memorials" is the title of a booklet just issued by the department of public works and buildings. It has for its theme the Illinois park plan, which in accordance with Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's wishes, is directed to improvement or reclamation of every important spot in the state that is hallowed by historic memories.

Many such places have been taken over by the state, the newest accessions in park properties, according to the booklet, being Black Hawk Watch Tower park in Rock Island county, White Pine Forest park in Ogle county, Giant City park in Union and Jackson counties, Fort Gage and Pierre Manard's homestead in Randolph county, Buffalo Rock park in LaSalle county, Mississippi Palisades park in Carroll county, Cave-in-the-Rock park in Hardin county, and the site of Lincoln's log cabin in Coles county.

Other historic spots and parks under supervision of the department, of which Harry H. Cleaveland is director, include the Lincoln monument, Lincoln homestead, Vandalia court house, Douglas monument, Fort Massac, Fort Charters, Old Salem park, Starved Rock park, Shabbona monument, Fort Creve Coeur, Metamora courthouse, Lovejoy monument, Garrison Hill cemetery, Cahokia Mounds park and Campbell's Island monument.

That Governor Emmerson plans to go to Washington, probably following the regular December session of congress, to seek federal aid for completion of the Illinois waterway, was announced in Chicago following the governor's Armistice day visit. The state is limited by law to the $20,000,000 already expended, and $5,000,000 more will be required to complete the project.

That the "Buy Illinois Coal" campaign, favored by the present state administration, is producing results, is shown by an increase of several millions of tons of coal mined in Illinois thus far this year, as compared with the same period last year. The figures have been compiled by the research department of Illinois Chamber of Commerce, and checked with reports of the Illinois coal bureau.

The following appointments have been announced by Director Clarence F. Buck of the state department of agriculture: Dr. C. C. Alexander, Springfield; Dr. F. J. Santee, Sterling; Dr. C. Barth, Amboy; Dr. C. E. Harre, McLeansboro; Dr. S. A. Ridgway, Geneva, veterinarians for tuberculosis eradication; Ray H. Schertz, Eureka, quarantine officer in the bureau of animal industry; Dr. Eric Nelson, Big Rock, quarantine officer; P. E. Denner, Deland, food inspector, division of foods and dairies.

Charles E. Durst, of Wheaton, has been appointed secretary of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, succeeding H. E. Young, resigned. Mr. Durst is a native of Illinois, has a doctor's degree from the state university, was a member of its faculty for nine years, has served as farm adviser in Union and Cook counties, has been prominent in state and federal agricultural circles, and for the last five years has been editor of two fruit magazines. The institute has offices in the state capitol.

The entire village of Eliza, in Mercer county, with the exception of four properties, was offered for sale at auction November 14, by John Bishop, owner, to whom the village, including a store, descended from his father. It was a social and business center of pioneer days, and is located about three miles from the birthplace, near the Mississippi river, of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

Illinois counties having a population of less than 125,000 may not extend tax levies for county purposes in excess of 25 cents on each hundred dollars of valuation. This is the opinion of Attorney General Carlstrom, who adds, "Any amount certified in excess of that rate must be disregarded by clerks."

Articles of incorporation for the Illinois Produce Marketing association have been filed at Springfield. It is under the wing of the Illinois Agricultural association and will have headquarters at Bloomington. The officers are: President, S. M. Elkins, McLean county; vice president, William Krause, Logan county; secretary-treasurer, Claude J. Martin, Mason county. On the board of directors are represented Richland, Edwards, White, Crawford, Adams, Brown, McDonough, Hancock, Macoupin and Scott counties.

Director Henry Kohn of the state department of purchases and supplies, long a personal friend of Governor Emmerson, has recovered sufficiently to be removed from a Springfield hospital to his home at Anna.

The largest strip mine in the world was formally opened November 7 west of Duquoin by the United Electrical Coal company. The mine is in the midst of 20,000 acres of strip coal land. Four large units are in operation and the investment runs into millions of dollars.

Vice President Charles Curtis, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, were the leading orators of Armistice day in Chicago. The vice president sounded the keynote, a call to preparedness, which ran throughout the day's orations. Governor Emmerson declared: "We must proclaim a new text for all Americans to preach. We welcome all who can be citizens to come to us for liberty and justice. We have no room within our boundaries for those who do not recognize law and justice, for those who cannot adjust themselves to our ideals of freedom." General Carlstrom made a ringing call to preparedness, tempered by a plea for success of President Hoover's efforts for lasting world peace.

Coal mines in Illinois produced 55,948,100 tons of soft coal last year, the Federal Bureau of Mines has announced. Thirty-three mines, each producing over a million net tons a year, comprising a total of 6 per cent of the state's mines, produced more than half of the state's coal.

Mrs. John C. Searle, of Rock Island, enjoys the distinction of having two sons serving as legislators at the same time, one in Illinois, the other in New York. November 5, 1929, Truman G. Searle, attorney of Rochester, N. Y., and brother of Representative Clinton J. Searle of Rock Island, was elected to the assembly at Albany, N. Y. Truman Searle attended Genesee high school, also Augustana college (Rock Island) for two years, and was graduated from the University of Illinois with A.B. degree in 1918; served in the navy during the World war; was graduated from the College of Law, Columbia university, New York, was admitted to the bar in New York state, has been associated with prominent law firms and is now a partner in Johnson & Searle, Rochester N. Y.

Col. Albert L. Culbertson of Delaware, colonel of the One Hundred and Thirtieth Illinois infantry, has been assigned to the militia bureau of the War department in Washington, on recommendation of Governor Emmerson to the secretary of war. The detail is for four years.

Whether cities have control over bus line traffic on their streets, or the Illinois Commerce commission is the authority in this relation, will be determined by the state Supreme court, probably in its December term, according to Charles W. Vail, clerk of the court. It is expected the decision will be cited in many states where similar conditions prevail.

Illinois car owners who desire the same license numbers for 1930 as last year, should mail their applications to reach the secretary of state by December 1, is the advice of automobile clubs. About 1,500,000 applications for license plates have been mailed out from Secretary William J. Stratton's office to car owners of the state. Applications, if properly made, will be filed, and plates will be mailed to applicants the latter part of December.

A committee is engaged in taking evidence from the two associations interested in the route of the proposed Lincoln Memorial highway. As soon as all the information is collected, it will be presented to H. H. Cleaveland, director of the state department of public works and buildings, and Frank Sheets, chief highway engineer, who will make a careful study of the facts presented and make the final decision as to the routing of the highway upon the basis of their findings. So far, no official action has been taken.

Poison liquor killed 421 Illinoisans last year, according to the announcement of Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, who pointed out that deaths from alcoholism increased 10 per cent during the period. The total for the state is second only to that of 1927 and higher than that of any other year. "Besides the 421 deaths attributed directly to alcohol," Doctor Hall said, "661 fatalities were charged against cirrhosis of the liver, a condition frequently brought about by too much strong drink." While the number of fatalities from alcoholism over the entire state for the year is on the upgrade, the number of such fatalities in Chicago was decreased by 27 per cent during the year. "Altogether," declared Doctor Hall, "the mortality records make a bad case for illicit liquor and the figures for down-state are by no means flattering to native pride."

The total value of public school property in Illinois has increased from $154,619,859 in 1918 to $385,032,007 in 1928, a boost of $230,412,148 during the decade, according to figures given out by Francis G. Blair, superintendent of public instruction. School bonds show an increase of $49,931,850 in the same period. The Educational Press Bulletin, issued by Mr. Blair's department, shows the value and bonded indebtedness of school property in each county in the state.

Illinois is to receive between $240,000 and $250,000 annually from inspection of gasoline and kerosene, officials of the state inspection department have estimated.

Otis F. Glenn, senator from Illinois, has recently filled speaking engagements at Newport, R. I., on the occasion of a bridge dedication; on the program of the Chicago Lodge of Elks, Armistice day at Soldier Field; and at a banquet at Chester, Pa. Senator Glenn is popular as an after-dinner speaker in Washington circles.

Lesson for November 24

THE HIGHER PATRIOTISM

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 1:1-3; 2:1-5; 4:5-11.

GOLDEN TEXT—And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Love for Everybody.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What is True Patriotism?

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Patriotism and Internationalism.

The lesson committee has rightly suggested the entire book of Jonah as the basis of our study. The topic selected by the committee may seem a little strained. It will hardly do to call the spirit which moved Jonah to preach to the Ninevites, patriotism; rather, we should recognize it as the passion of a missionary going forth with the message of God, calling upon men to repent and turn to Him. Patriotism means love for one's country, while the spirit of the missionary is passionate love for lost men of all countries.

I. Jonah's Call and Commission (1:1, 2).

Jonah, a Jew, was called to go and preach repentance to a Gentile city. In a real sense, salvation is of the Jews. In the seed of Abraham all nations of the earth shall be blessed (Gen. 12:1, 2). The story of Jonah graphically portrays the history of Israel as a nation. God separated Israel to be the channel through which His mercy and salvation were to be carried to all the nations of the earth. They, like Jonah, have been recalcitrant to duty. Because of this God has caused them to be swallowed up by the nations, who will one day in the future spue them out upon dry ground, Palestine. After chastisement they, like Jonah, will discharge their obligation and nations will repent and turn to God.

II. Jonah's Flight From Duty (1:3).

He turned his back upon God and attempted to flee from His presence. He went in the opposite direction to which he was sent. He did not believe in foreign missions. In the same way, Israel has become an apostate people, and instead of a blessing has become a burden and curse to the nations.

III. Jonah's Correction (1:4-2:10).

1. Overtaken by a storm (1:5). Trouble soon came upon the disobedient servant of God. So with the Jews, misfortune after misfortune, storm after storm have overtaken them because they turned from God. They are now tossed about by the nations. They, like Jonah, are asleep.

2. Cast overboard (1:15).

In their perplexity the sailors cast lots and the lot fell upon Jonah. According to his own direction they did this. God had prepared a great fish which swallowed Jonah.

3. Jonah's deliverance (ch. 2).

Jonah in his affliction turned to God and prayed (James 5:13). God miraculously preserved him while in the belly of the fish. God has miraculously preserved Israel while in the heart of the nations. The fish could not digest Jonah, neither can the nations assimilate Israel. Jonah repented while in the fish. So Israel will repent as she goes into the great tribulation. God made the fish to vomit out Jonah. So He will at the proper time cause the nations to cast out Israel.

IV. Jonah's Commission Renewed. (3:1-10).

Although Israel has been rebellious and failed in the execution of her commission, she will repent and go forward to fulfill her commission in preaching the gospel to the nations of the earth observe.

1. The field of his ministry (v. 3).

It was to be the great Gentile city Nineveh.

2. His message (v. 4).

He was instructed to "preach the preaching" which God had commissioned him to utter—Nineveh was to be overthrown within forty days.

3. Effect upon the people of Nineveh (vv 5-10).

They repented and sued for pardon. In the time to come the Gentile nations will repent of their sins when the gospel of the kingdom is preached unto them by the Jews.

V. Jonah's Behavior (4:1-11).

1. His displeasure (vv 1-3).

He now makes known the real reason for his flight from duty. He knew that the gracious God would spare the people who repented.

2. God reproves Jonah (vv. 4-11).

By means of the gourd God shows him his error. The closing scene affords a striking example of the patience and pity of God in contrast with the hard-heartedness of man.

Hidden Gold Found

A story is told of a man whose home and mill, all that he had in the world, were swept away by floods. But, as he stood on the scene of his loss, after the water had subsided, broken-hearted and discouraged, he saw something shining in the bank, which the water had washed bare. It was gold. The flood which had beggared him, had made him rich. "Sorrow strips off loved possessions, but reveals the treasures of the love of God."

The Mark of Genuine Aspirin..

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. It is the accepted antidote for pain. Its relief may always be relied on, whether used for the occasional headache, to head-off a cold, or for the more serious aches and pains from neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism or other ailments. It's easy to identify Bayer Aspirin by the Bayer Cross on every tablet, by the name Bayer on the box and the word "genuine" always printed in red.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Mono-aceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Native African Belief

Aids Spread of Pests

Rhodesia is suffering badly from the depredations of lions and leopards. It would be the simplest matter in the world to eliminate these pests as in most parts of South Africa, but the natives, although baited by the offers of gems and other rewards, simply will not help the white farmers in this matter. The whole truth is that the natives believe that the spirits of their departed chiefs are reincarnated in the lions and leopards that infest the country.

As a result of this superstition no native dare kill a lion for fear of bringing the anger of the spirits upon him and his family. The native is rather between the devil and the deep sea, because the "spirits" have a nasty habit of carrying off members of his family when hungry.—Washington Star.

For any BABY

We can never be sure just what makes an infant restless, but the remedy can always be the same. Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use. As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't sleep, let Castoria soothe and quiet him. Sometimes it's a touch of colic. Sometimes constipation. Or diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay. Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to stronger medicines as the child grows older. Castoria is readily obtained at any drugstore, and the genuine easily identified by the Chas. H. Fletcher signature that appears on every wrapper.

Girl Fights Big Handicap

MANY a girl would give up in despair when she found herself snubbed in school and unpopular in college, but not so Mrs. Norma Kussel Jones of 1567 Cramer Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

"When I was seventeen I went away to college," says Mrs. Jones. "Freda, my room-mate, was a very popular girl. Soon she asked to have her room changed. It seems I kept her awake at night, I slept so restlessly. No one knows how I suffered.

"One day one of my teachers found me sobbing. 'Why,' she said, 'sometimes sluggish circulation causes restless sleep. Why don't you try Nujol?'"

"In two weeks Nujol had begun clearing out the poisons in my body, my skin had a clear healthy appearance, and everything looked brighter. 'What have you been doing to yourself?' asked my room-mate. 'You are a different girl.' The days and years that followed were filled with every activity and not long ago Freda was maid of honor at my wedding. That's what Nujol did for me!"

Such a simple way to health and happiness! Your doctor will tell you that Nujol contains no medicines or drugs—it is simply bodily lubrication—harmless, normal, and it works easily so you will be regular as clockwork. You can get a bottle in a sealed package at any drug store for what you would pay for two or three sodas.

Get a bottle today and try it. If you are like most other people Nujol will make you brighter, happier, more able to succeed. Don't put off good health! Start being well this easy way, this very day.

Brave American Girls like this one never say die!

GETS $400 A WEEK

This little girl, Dorothea Dux, is the eight-year-old daughter of a former burgomaster of Budapest, whose acting in a comparatively unimportant film attracted the eye of a German impresario, who witnessed it by chance in Berlin, with the result that he went to Budapest at once and engaged the gifted Dorothea to star in child parts at the record figure of $400 per week. (Herbert, N.Y.)

THE SMALLEST HORSE IN THE WORLD

This, the smallest horse in the world, standing but 17 inches high and weighing only 11 pounds, is the proud possession of Mrs. J. C. Lucadema of 247 Satterwaite Avenue, Nutley, New Jersey. The product of fine Belgian horse stock, the dwarf will be drilled for circus or other exhibition work, according to Mrs. Lucadema's present plans. What a heap of fun our kiddies would have if they could have one of these horses in their homes! (Herbert Photos).

AMERICA'S BEST KNOWN 'LITTLE BOY'

If you were to ask a group of people the name of the best known little boy in America, probably no two would give you the same answer. But if you were to ask "who is the best little boy painter in America?" nine out of ten would answer, "The Little Dutch Boy." The little Dutch Boy, like Topsy, really just happened, having first seen the light of day in four very rough pencil sketches submitted to the National Lead Company as advertising illustrations. The character was so appealing, that one of the best portrait painters in New York at that time, Lawrence Carmichael Earle, was commissioned to take the sketches and to breathe into them the breath of life. The result was a canvas which, aside from its commercial significance, everybody admires as a work of art. The original painting of which this is a photographic reproduction, hangs in the National Lead Company's Board of Directors' Room in New York. The blue shirt, the blue overalls, the wooden shoes, the blonde hair, the ruddy cheeks, and the uplifted paint brush, have become the symbol of good painting from coast to coast. Who, interested in the art preservative and decorative does not know that the Dutch Boy Painter is synonymous with paint made of pure white lead? This popularity is due chiefly to his pleasing and attractive personality. His face is very expressive and winning. There is a union of mischief and earnestness of purpose, or at least, interest in what he is doing, and he is known in every community in America, regardless of its size or location. Two other paintings of boys both famous in the world of art, figured prominently in recent news. The Blue Boy of Gainsborough is one of the best known paintings by this master. Not long ago it was sold for $250,000 and the buyer felt he was getting it at a bargain price. The third of the famous paintings of boys is Romney's celebrated Blue Boy. This painting recently changed hands, having been bought by a rich American. (Herbert Photos, New York)

Baptism by Sprinkling

Home Needs Help

Appeals are being sent out for Thanksgiving funds in behalf of the Christian Home Orphanage at Council Bluffs, Iowa.

This Home has stood for forty-seven years and is the largest and best equipped work of its kind in the mid-west.

The excellent care given the children, the educational and physical and religious training given these little ones by a staff of highly capable instructors has made the work widely known for its splendid service to humanity. Naturally, appeals from those in want and suffering are constantly increasing, so that now, with winter at hand, the work finds itself unable to meet the demands made upon it, and is therefore appealing to its friends and the public in general, all of whom are surely concerned for the present and future welfare of these helpless children, for a Thanksgiving offering to assist it in carrying on its great work. The Home is non-sectarian and is supported wholly by the voluntary contributions of good people everywhere.

Send a Thanksgiving donation for these children.

Address the Christian Home Orphanage, Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Referendum Before War

The Smithsonian Institution says that the holding of a referendum on war was the accepted method among organized Indian tribes like the Iroquoian and Muskogean tribes. This was mentioned by Lafitau in his writings published in 1724.

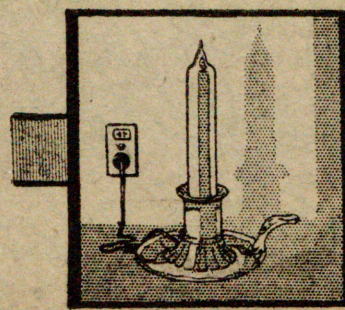

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffolding outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

The NEW LAMPS are now ON DISPLAY

And All Are
Moderately Priced

The modern spirit is pleasantly reflected in the new displays of table and floor lamps. Simple but decorative, they lend a subtle distinction to their surroundings. Bases are copper, brass and brushed steel. Shades are parchment, appropriately tinted . . . Also shown at the Public Service Store are interesting assortments of other lamps, including boudoir models with pottery bases and silk shades, and latest-style bridge lamps.

"Ohio School of Air" Brings World to Little Red School House

By JAMES M. CHALFANT

THIRTY years ago B. H. Darrow, then attending a little red schoolhouse in Champaign county, Ohio—actually a little red schoolhouse—began his first official connection with school administration. His position then, at the age of ten, was rather humble. During the fall and winter months he built the fire, being required on especially cold days to be at the schoolhouse at seven o'clock in the morning in order to have the place warm by the time the other youngsters arrived. As compensation for caring for the fire he received five cents a day.

For sweeping out the room (when the roads were muddy it was usually necessary to use first the hoe, then the broom, and then the mop) he received another nickel daily. With these hard-earned nickels young Darrow made the first payment on a Webster's unabridged dictionary, he recalls.

Today, after a varied experience including teaching in the country schools, the centralized school, and the high school, Darrow, known to thousands of school children in more than a score of states as "Uncle Ben, the Radio Schoolmaster," heads the most interesting and most successful effort in education by radio, the "Ohio School of the Air," a division of the state department of education of Ohio at Columbus.

His official title now is director of educational broadcasting, state of Ohio. Two years ago he was just a free-lance "visionary," a man with a big idea: that the radio might be enlisted to vitalize public school education. There were still in the United States well over 150,000 of those isolated little one-room schools such as he had attended in his youth.

So long as that was the case, he felt, the slogan "Equality of Opportunity in Education" must remain rather empty and meaningless. Surely there must be some way to tap the great streams of knowledge, of culture, of current events, and carry new life and vigor to the country schoolhouse as well as to the city school system. The radio might well lift the little red schoolhouse out of its long isolation and place it on a par with the million-dollar city school, for a part of the school day, at least. Master teachers, through the magic of radio, could become visiting teachers and expert assistants for the teachers in charge of those 150,000 one-room schools still in operation.

"Well, the story of the origin of the Ohio School of the Air is a bit complicated," Darrow said when the question was put to him. "And my connection with it is, I suppose, the result of my interests over a good many years."

"In the first place, I've been something of a pioneer right along, always preferring the uncertain with great possibilities to the rather tame certainty. With the exception of my high school teaching, since I left college I have filled no other man's shoes—I've always made a job for myself and then filled it."

"After varied and interesting experiences in country life institute work, and with the agricultural extension of Maryland State college, I found myself in 1924 in charge of children's programs at station WLS, Chicago. I became intensely interested in educational broadcasting then, but left WLS to promote a patent that I thought was going to prove profitable. It did, fairly so, but not for me! After a year or two, I abandoned my manufacturing project. The first thing I thought of then was to get back into the field of radio education."

"More and more there grew upon me the idea of a National School of the Air. I was convinced that the radio might become a tremendous agency for public school education. The idea presupposed three big 'ifs.' If educators could be induced officially to sponsor the project. If a radio station might be persuaded to broadcast educational programs free of charge, and if financial support could be secured to pay the cost of administration, a school of the air could be established."

"From one end of the country to the other I traveled, seeking to enlist the aid of organiza-

1.—B. H. Darrow, "Uncle Ben, the Radio Schoolmaster," director of educational broadcasting in the "Ohio School of the Air."

2.—Class listening in on the "Smile Lady's" broadcast of story plays and rhythmic in a Cincinnati school.

3.—Gov. Myers Y. Cooper of Ohio (right) and John L. Clifton, director of education, listening to the "Ohio School of the Air."

4.—A school principal listening in on the "School of the Air" program.

5.—Edwin Markham, distinguished poet and author of the famous "The Man With the Hoe," who is a member of the committee on poetry of the "Ohio School of the Air."

tions and individuals to help me put my idea across. Finally, late in 1927, the Payne Study and Experiment Fund of New York became sufficiently interested to put me on its staff to investigate and develop the possibilities of broadcasting for schools on a national scale, under the guidance of organized educational authorities.

"The results of that preliminary survey were laid before the National Educational association in Boston, February, 1928. They were greatly interested, but beyond the passing of a strong resolution suggesting a committee to look into the matter, did nothing. Then I interested the leaders of the Roosevelt Memorial association—James R. Garfield, Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Gifford Pinchot, Arthur W. Page, and others. It looked as though the association were going to sponsor the project, but it was discovered that some technicality as to the terms of gift made that utterly impossible."

"In June, 1928, I thought I had the Radio Manufacturers' association in convention in Chicago, ready to put the idea across. But once more red tape 'gummed the works.' In July I came to Columbus and broached my plan to Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education. He was interested, but frankly dubious of his department's ability to undertake the work."

"I kept hammering away at Clifton for some time. In October the Payne fund came to my rescue, with an offer to pay my salary for the rest of the year and loan me to Ohio. And then station WLW of Cincinnati came through with an offer of free broadcasting. I went back to Clifton and told him the situation. 'Pull up your chair,' he said, 'You are Ohio's first director of educational broadcasting.' It's too long a story to tell how a program was evolved—how educators were awakened to the great possibilities of educational broadcasting, how great teachers and other national figures were secured to donate their time and services to the School of the Air. From thirty to sixty people each week were co-operating with the school without compensation. The 'Ohio School of the Air' was established in January, 1929. In April, 1929, the state legislature appropriated funds to carry it on for two years."

The "Ohio School of the Air" has attracted so much favorable interest on the part of educators generally that it is to be, during the fall months of the present year, the subject of a special investigation by a federal commission. This commission, composed of prominent educators, was appointed by Secretary of Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, with instructions to report to him not later than January 1, 1930, on the feasibility of educational broadcasting on a national scale.

The Ohio project is not the first, but it is the pioneer in the field of constant, regular public school radio education. And Darrow is the first director of educational broadcasting ever appointed by a state. The Ohio effort differs from a number of earlier experiments by being more varied, and in having legislative support.

Each school day over WLW and WEAO from two to three o'clock the "School of the Air" brings to thousands of schoolrooms and thousands of homes a carefully correlated and graded course of instruction for all twelve grades of public school. Current events, story games and rhythmic, health talks, history dramatizations, nature study, appreciation of art, geographical world tours, French lessons, chemistry and physics lectures, music lessons, drama—these suggest the breadth of the curriculum.

Small wonder that schools are hastening to equip to receive broadcasts. In some cities, notably Cincinnati, school boards require that all new school buildings shall be completely wired for radio.

The "School of the Air," as the state department of education very emphatically says, is in no way intended to supplant classroom teaching. It is meant to augment and supplement the face-to-face teaching of the classroom teacher. Its programs are carefully planned with the close co-operation of school people all over the state. It attempts to do only those things which may be done better by radio than by any other instrumentality. For example, the school children may read of some great current event such as the inauguration of a president or the ratifying of a peace pact, or the teacher may tell them about it. How much more compelling, vivid, memorable, it is, however, for them to hear history in the making via the loudspeaker. They may feel the pulse of the nation—the vital, throbbing present and so get a new conception of the stuff that history is made of.

The attitude of the Ohio department of education toward the "School of the Air" experiment is clearly reflected in a recent communication from J. L. Clifton, director, to co-operating teachers:

"It may be said that at no time has the world of science been so able and willing to serve education as at the present. The radio, having passed through a joyous, carefree childhood, and the storm and stress of the adolescent period, is now approaching mature, creative manhood. As it comes knocking at the schoolroom door, it says, 'Can you, will you use me?' Great broadcasting stations are at our service. A wealth of talent is available, but unless there is close co-operation between the radio teacher and the classroom teacher, the pupils will profit but little."

"One marvels at the tremendous possibilities of the radio. But in the classroom use of the radio many problems remain to be solved. Extensive experimentation in the psychology of hearing should be made. New principles of teaching must be evolved. New methods must be developed, for educational broadcasting is still in the experimental stage. But a big idea is on foot, and we teachers, as a body who have always performed our duty towards public education, must co-operate in order that the radio may be made to work in constantly new ways."

"Even in an age of marvels, there is something awe-inspiring about the radio. Through the radio the throbbing present may be brought home to us and the dead past made to live again. Certainly not the least of the splendid achievements in radio has been the development of radio education—the enriching and vitalizing of classroom instruction."

"Very gratifying results have already been noted. However, with the conception that this newest aid to education seeks to complement but not to substitute for the living presence of the classroom teacher, who shall set the bounds to what we may confidently expect to accomplish in advancing the ends and aims of true education in the days which lie immediately before us?"

Fair Exhibits Big Aid in Educational Work

The Department of Agriculture is taking the government to the people in a way that will give a better understanding of what the department is attempting to do in bettering agricultural and home conditions, says the Washington Star. Requests have been received from approximately fifty state fairs and thirty interstate fairs for exhibits of some phase of the department's work.

By means of pictures, diagrams, charts and motion pictures the various exhibits are giving demonstrations of the best methods in live stock and poultry raising, dairying, forestry, marketing, road development, boys' and girls' club work and other activities. The various exhibits total from 1,000 to 1,400 square feet each and make an impressive demonstration of Uncle Sam's interest in his children. Approximately twenty carloads of exhibits were sent out altogether to make the circuits of the various fairs which requested them.

Unfair Triumph

Senator Smoot at a Washington reception said of a new Bolshevik triumph in Russia:

"This triumph reminds me of burly Mr. Strawbridge. He bragged:

"The man insulted me, he cursed me, and, fierce as he was, I knocked him down."

"What? With your fist?" they asked.

"No," said burly Mr. Strawbridge, 'with my car.'"

Population Increase

Doctor Kuezniski of the Harris foundation institute, estimates that at present the population of the world is increasing at the rate of five-eighths of 1 per cent annually.

Speed King Utilizes Transatlantic Telephone

MAJOR H. O. D. SEGRAVE

MAJOR H. O. D. SEGRAVE, the first man to travel over 100 miles an hour in an automobile and the man who, with his recent record of one mile in less than sixteen seconds or an average of 231.36 miles an hour, has traveled faster than any person on the earth's surface, has also created something of a record in his use of the transatlantic telephone facilities. After making his marvelous record in Florida this past winter, he talked to London ten times within twenty-four hours.

Writing of the establishment of his new world record and of his telephone calls to London, Major Segrave says: "It is my belief that men will continue in their efforts to make new records on land, on sea and in the air until a halt is called by the limitation of mechanical power and human endurance. But the best of these records, the dizzyest of speeds attained by whirling propellers or driving wheels, will remain puny by comparison to the giant force that carries voices across a continent or an ocean and half way around the world in a thousandth part of a second."

HE WAS BOUND TO GET A START

WILLIS R. HORTON

WHEN Willis R. Horton, now right-of-way man for the Nebraska Telephone Company, decided to become a telephone man away back in 1897, he recalls that he travelled 800 miles at his own expense and waited several months, until an opening came to get on the payroll of the company which he has served continuously ever since.

The Italian Minister of Communications has announced that a submarine telephone cable will be laid between Milan and Sardinia.

Many from here attended the play put on by the Arbor Park P. T. A. at Oak Forest on November 15 and 16. The play "Southern Cinderella" made a tremendous hit, in fact the players have been asked to put the play on in Chicago. The costumes were beautiful. The two nights the play was given were red letter nites for Oak Forest. Mrs. John Swisher of Tinley who directed the play was honored the first night when she was called on the stage between the 2nd and 3rd act and presented with an armful of beautiful chrysanthemums.

Mrs. M. C. Quinn of Lezannee, Michigan is visiting at the F. A. Harper home.

Honor Founder of Noted Mission

The celebration of the 20th anniversary of the Morning Star Mission at Joliet last Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of this week, was truly wonderful. Bankers, business, newspaper men, ministers, rescue mission workers and laymen united in paying marked tribute to the great and wonderful work that has been done by Supt. Peter McCarthy and his country famous mission. The testimonies given showed how Peter has saved many from despair and misery and made happy Christians of them thru the grace and power of the Master. It is a practical religion all the time with Peter. His work and his mission are so interesting that The Chicago Sunday Tribune had a two column story and Peter's picture in last Sunday's Tribune.

As a special mark of esteem and of tribute Supt. McCarthy was presented with a bouquet of twenty exceedingly beautiful roses, one for each of the years in the life of the mission and its founder.
